NEW BUILDING

Only a couple of fresh newbuilding orders to report this week. In tankers BW have now finalised an order for six firm plus two option coated 115,000dwt LR2 tankers at Daehan, with delivery of the firm vessels understood to be in 2020. It also came to light this week that Kyoei Tanker ordered a single 310,000dwt VLCC at JMU, with delivery in the third quarter of 2019. This takes the owners total VLCC orderbook to four units, three of which are at JMU and a singleton at Namura.

RECYCLING

Confusion!

The increase in activity that was expected after the Eid festivities has not materialised as of yet and in hindsight this has not been a bad thing since local sentiment is still weak particularly as another rumour surrounding the Bangladeshi budget indicating that the 15% VAT on the importing of vessels for recycling may actually go through, There has only been a trickle of supply so far except for the occasional larger LDT sized tanker, to keep the market from grinding to a complete halt at present. However with falling Capesize freight rates, we could start to see vessels emerging from this sector which has lain dormant compared to last year where 67 had already been sold for recycling compared to the mere 19 so far this year.

Although looking across to Europe there have been further rises in the Turkish recycling market after USD has been weakening against the Turkish Lira and as well as strong demand from local steel mills, this could continue with the supply of tonnage from geographically positioned vessels in the Mediterranean continuing to be sparse and not meeting demand locally that is needed.
